CONSIGLI DALLA PUNTATA

- When opening the paints for the first time, you may see a little oil come out first—this is normal due to the heavy oil content that allows the paints to work on multiple surfaces.
- Keep your brush lines consistent when distressing—either all going up, down, or left to right—to avoid creating an unintended cross-hatch pattern.
- The white pigment is blendable and will dry back lighter than it appears, so you can adjust the effect as you work.
